We're pleased to welcome Martin Mahoney, Executive Director of The Bennington Museum, as our last guest speaker for the season.

With a deep passion for history, art, and community engagement, Martin brings a wealth of experience in museum leadership and cultural preservation.

As the Executive Director of The Bennington Museum, he is dedicated to showcasing Vermont's rich artistic and historical heritage, from the Revolutionary War to the work of contemporary regional artists. Under his leadership, the museum continues to celebrate the stories, creativity, and resilience that define Vermont.

Martin believes that museums are more than just collections of artifacts—they are dynamic spaces that connect the past to the present and inspire future generations. His work focuses on making history accessible and relevant to all audiences.

We're looking forward to an insightful and engaging presentation as Martin shares his knowledge and passion for Vermont's history, art, and culture!
